

Management Development Programme

empowering people to make a real difference

Harness the power of management development training to improve your business performance and learner success rates.

Intraining's pioneering Management Development Programme has been developed specifically for work based learning providers to develop the skills of their people and realise business improvements. It was designed, together with academics from Leeds Metropolitan University Business School, to benefit our own business and it has been extremely well received. We believe that it will meet the needs of many other learning providers and are now making it available across the work based learning sector.

“By the end of the programme, all delegates will have acquired enhanced leadership and management skills, enabling them to more effectively manage their teams and achieve business targets. Delegates will take away many practical solutions that they can apply to their own specific work situations.”

Kristi Hudson, Consultant

Although the six-month programme is tailored to meet the specific individual and business needs of each delegate, there are a number of core themes running through the course dealing with leadership and management issues.

The programme starts with a two-day induction workshop which defines a set of key learning objectives. These are then addressed in a series of 'action' workshops, where delegates undertake peer-supported, business-led learning projects.

At the end of the programme delegates have the option to submit a written assignment if they wish to pursue accreditation for their learning, focussing on business improvements in their own area of work.

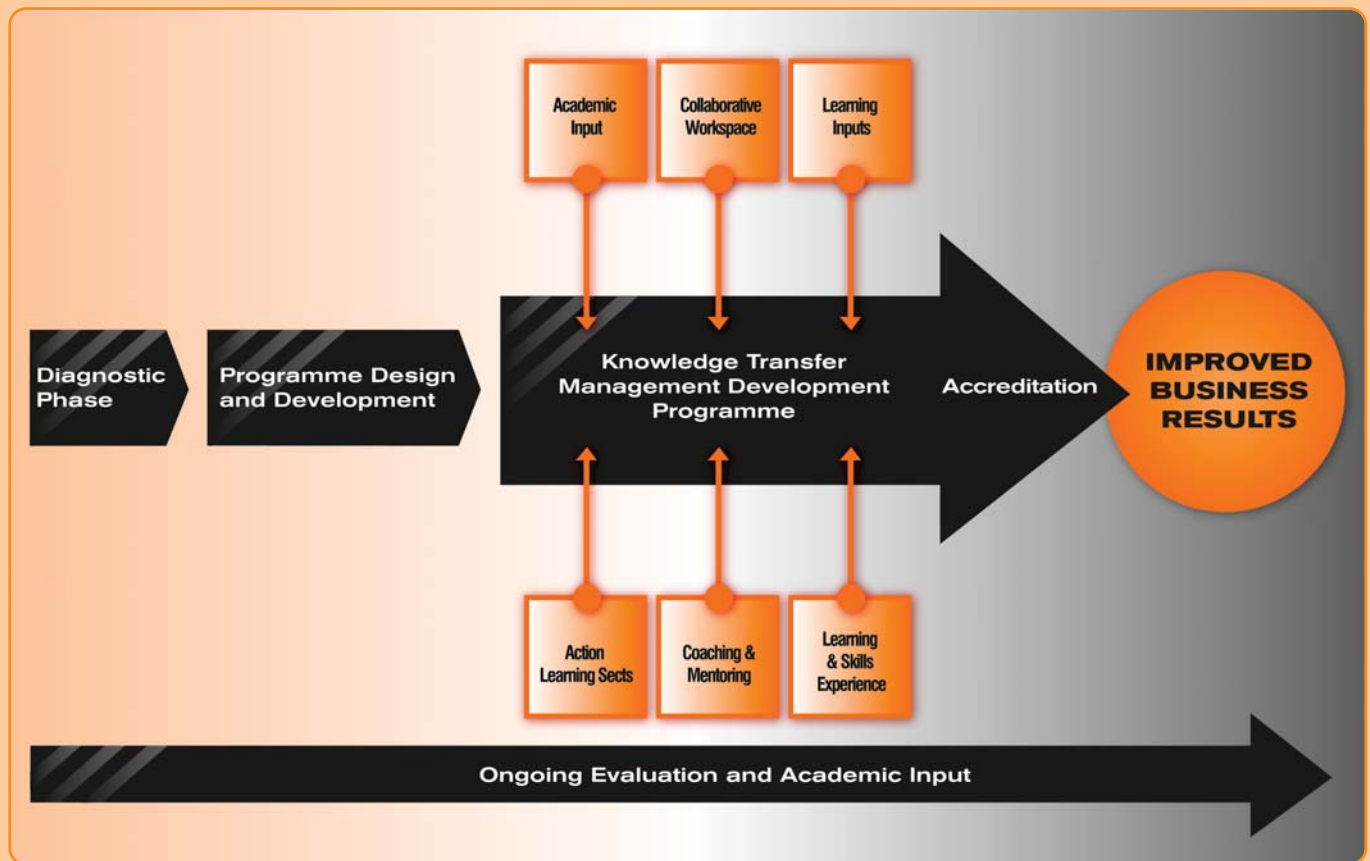

Throughout the programme, there will also be on-going coaching and mentoring from a named member of staff for individual support and access to an online collaborative workspace to encourage reflective practice and collaboration with other delegates.

Consulting

www.intraining.co.uk/consulting

intraining
Developing People for Business

Our approach

Previous Delegate Comments:

“ It has been an incredibly valuable experience both personally and professionally. ”

Betty Kelly, Development Manager

“ This is an excellent programme. I have learned a lot during the course and it has been challenging and rewarding. ”

Tracey Taylor, Team Manager

For further information about how this programme can benefit your business please contact:

Kristi Hudson

E: kristi.hudson@intraining.co.uk

T: 0114 2898450

Consulting

www.intraining.co.uk/consulting

intraining
Developing People for Business